

Szabo-APASL 2018

Gyongyi Szabo, MD, PhD is the Worcester Foundation for Biomedical Sciences Endowed Chair, Associate Vice Provost and Professor at the University of Massachusetts Medical School. Dr. Szabo is an expert in the field of liver immunology and inflammation. Her translational and clinical investigations focus on alcoholic hepatitis, non-alcoholic fatty liver disease and viral hepatitis. She is member of the Hungarian Academy of Sciences and serves as advisor for several large academic institutions and the NIH. She served as President of the American Association for the Study of Liver Diseases in 2015 and Editor-in-Chief of Hepatology Communications.