Dr. Iwakiri is an Associate Professor of Medicine in the Section of Digestive Diseases at Yale University School of Medicine, conducting basic and translational research in various liver diseases with particular interest in liver fibrosis, portal hypertension and lymphatic vascular systems. After receiving her PhD degree in nutritional biochemistry from Colorado State University, she moved to Yale University School of Medicine for her postdoctoral training and then promoted to the faculty position. She has been actively involved in multiple AASLD committees, single interest groups (SIG) and abstract review committees. Currently, she is a standing member of the Basic Research Committee, Research Award Committee, Vice-Chair/Chair-elect of Liver Cell Biology in Hepatic Diseases SIG, and was a steering committee member of Portal Hypertension SIG. She served as an Associate Editor for the Hepatology Elsewhere section of Hepatology from 2011 to 2016 and have also served as an editorial board member on other major Hepatology journals including Journal of Hepatology, Hepatology International and Liver International. She is a standing member of the Biomedical Research Review Subcommittee (AA-1) at NIAAA.
